

Weather Report & Forecast

SATELLITE-BASED GLANCE INTO THIS MORNING, SUNDAY 09 MARCH 2025

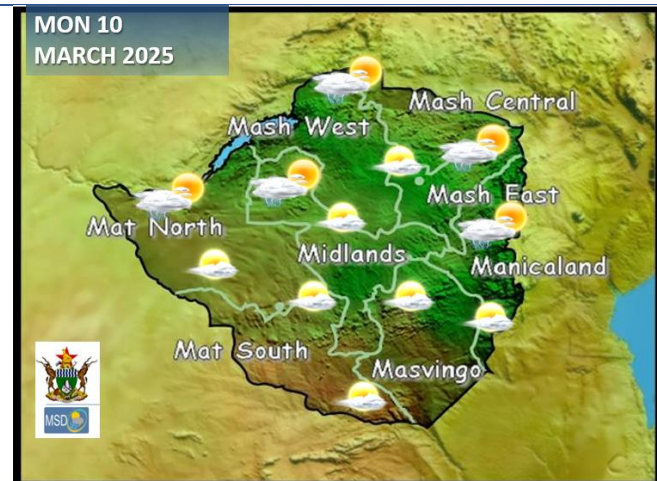

The presence of residual moisture over the northern and eastern parts of the country led to scattered light showers in some areas. In the southern and western regions, isolated light showers occurred due to advection of moist and cool south-easterly winds. This morning, the influx of south-easterly winds over the southern and western parts of the country brought partly cloudy and mild conditions. Meanwhile, the northern and eastern areas experienced brief cloudy and mild conditions in the morning. As the day progressed, much of the country became partly cloudy and warm.

Meanwhile the Meteorological Services Department is currently monitoring Moderate Tropical Storm JUDE, which is expected to continue its west-south-westward path before making landfall on the coast of Mozambique's Nampula province on Monday morning
